Description

A true architectural masterpiece nestled in nature, located in a private gated community with 24-hour access control and security.

Architecture, space, nature, and light are undoubtedly the defining features of this unique property. Everything coexists in such natural harmony that the extraordinary, understated luxury present in every square inch of this home almost goes unnoticed.

Originally conceived by one of the founders of the community, this home is set on a historic and unique plot of land, originally so expansive that it nearly occupied the entire block. Its architecture, inspired by the artist Alvar Aalto, was designed from the outset to engage in a dialogue with its surroundings, harmoniously integrating proportions, orientation, landscape, and light.

The house maintains a continuous and organic relationship between the indoors and outdoors. Every space has been designed to open up to the garden, which now functions as a private, peaceful forest filled with century-old pine trees that exude depth, intimacy, and a serene beauty that's hard to replicate.

The proportions of the home, its orientation, the way the architecture interacts with the garden, and how the landscape weaves into everyday life all reflect a solid and highly uncommon original concept. Nothing about this home feels coincidental: everything conveys coherence, balance, and a rare architectural sensitivity.

However, if there's one defining element of this property, it's its relationship with light. Light that enters from various directions. Light filtering through the trees. Light that streams through the double-height spaces, transforming the atmosphere throughout the day and infusing the home with rich tones, warmth, and a perpetually vibrant ambiance.

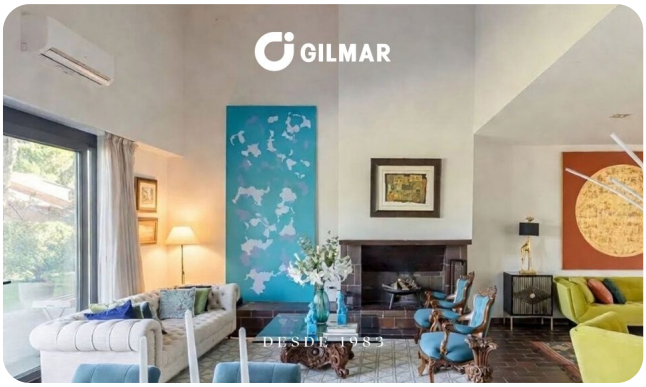

From various points inside the home and the garden, your gaze extends towards the Sierra de Madrid. In the distance, the horizon offers some of the most expansive, profound, and beautiful sunsets in the area.

A one-of-a-kind home with personality in every aspect—its materials, light, expansive spaces, and restful en-suite bedrooms that include lounge areas and grand windows. This house radiates peace and harmony. The property is equipped with solar panels, incorporating efficiency and sustainability while staying true to its concept. Ideally situated within the community and conveniently close to major access routes, including the M50 and M503, as well as the Montepríncipe and Puerta de Hierro hospitals, shopping centers, schools, and the Santander Financial City.
